Description

This item is a compressed .zip file that is 41.8kb when compressed, but when a person tries to unzip the file it explodes to a massive 42 Petabytes. That's 44,040,192 GB. A computer doesn't process that the uncompressed data is so large until it is too late.

This tool can be used for many things. You can completely render an antivirus software useless for a while (while you plant a keylogger/RAT). An antivirus will try to scan this file and will take WEEKS of constant scanning, making the antivirus unable to scan any other files while it scans this one.

You can also take up all of the empty space on a hard drive costing a user tons of time finding the files and deleting them.

I use this tool mainly just to disable antivirus so that I can plant some RAT's and keylogger. It works like a charm.
